6. International Terrorism: In response to DCI tasking, the CIPC initiated a fast-track baseline review on how the Intelligence Community is handling, and is organized to handle, this growing problem. The ad hoc working group established to develop this report has completed its initial effort and the interim report was forwarded to the DCI on 23 December 1983. The Working Group is presently meeting and developing a more in depth report on this subject for the DCI's consideration. []

7. Subsequent to the international terrorism interim report of 23 December, the CIPC was tasked to develop a concept for a DCI Terrorism Analyst Net connecting the Intelligence Community's various terrorism intelligence elements. The concept has been developed and was approved by the DCI on 20 January 1984. (Copy at Tab A). []

8. Soviet Ballistic Missile Defenses: The task force established to study this intelligence problem, in response to DCI tasking, is in the final stages of completing an interim report for the DCI. We will provide you a copy of this report when it is finalized. []

9. Intelligence Collection Against China: This study effort continues to proceed generally on schedule. The Political Dynamics Subworking Group has submitted its initial draft, and the other two subworking groups should follow suit in a week or two. These initial reports will serve as the basis for the complete study. The Working Group's production schedule calls for them to complete the draft study for Intelligence Community review and coordination by the end of March. []

10. Soviet CBW Intelligence Problem: The draft TOR on this study effort has been completed and is en route to you for your review and comment. This study effort has also been placed on the CIPC agenda for discussion at the 13 February 1984 meeting. []

11. Target/Topic Assessment and Evaluation: As I reported to you last month, the DCI has expanded the CIPC charter to include evaluation of collection strategy mixes in relation to developing national strategy and intelligence needs. The CIPC staff is presently developing a concept for accomplishing this task. Once finalized, we will seek your review and comments prior to presenting the concept of operation to the DCI for his approval. []
